

TechInc Open Hackspace Day

Where: Club Karlsson at the NIMK building (Nederlands Instituut voor Mediakunst), Keizersgracht 264, Amsterdam

Date: 31 March 2012, Saturday

Time: 13:00-late

Yes ladies and gents, it's national open hackspace day in Holland. We don't have a space at the moment, so we decided to hire out Club Karlsson again and have another night of talks/beer/people/stuff. This will be advertised widely, and we're expecting alot of people to turn up. There should be a whole host of varied talks.

Price

Workshop is completely free (13:00–18:00) has limited space, so please register on the website.

(<http://www.meetup.com/iotamsterdam/events/55963172/>)

From 19:30 onwards, attendance of lightning talks will cost 5 euros (suggested donation), which includes drinks and food (extra donations welcome.)

General Schedule

Time	What do we do?
13:00 — 19:00	is where we lounge about playing music, singing, educating and generally wondering whats an acceptable time to start drinking @ room #2
18:00 — 19:00	is where we order pizza and eat @ room #2
19:30 — 22:00	is where we have lightning talks @ room #2
23:00 —late	is where we do more lounging etc @ room #2

Workshops

@ Room #1

Joe Saavedra, adjunct professor at Parson's School of Design NYC and developer of the Citizensensor.cc project, will lead a half-day workshop (13:30–17:30) for the beginner Arduino/Pachube user.

Learn how to create data feeds, input data using simple manual tools (website and mobile apps), and then automate the process via an internet-connected Arduino. This is a super-practical introduction.
